Addison Business Concerns Make Possible a Good Baseball Team

Contributions of various units recognized in post-season summary—Uniforms and cash give team impetus to play good baseball — Mayor Sisto heads list of donors—Banquet for league Saturday.

The finale of the baseball season for the Addison Merchants will be written Saturday night at a banquet in the Eagle Hotel for all teams in the league. The Addisonites finished third in the league schedule after a season of very active playing of both league and non-league games. The composition of the team remained about the same throughout the season.

The team this year was made possible through the generous donations of merchants. Some gave baseball uniforms with appropriate lettering while others contributed money towards the purchase of baseballs, bats, bases and other equipment.

Much enjoyment was had by the various fellows who played on the team and Addison, as always had representation in leagues worthy of being called "good leagues".

The interest of the community baseball fans was high at times and the players were cheered on by the attendance at the games. Voluntary contributions solicited from the fans by the passing of the hat, plus the donations enabled the team to defray all expenses throughout the season.

Mayor Angelo Sisto, a firm believer in athletic programs for young people contributed a great deal towards the support of the team by donating four 20 foot benches with posts to hold them in place and a gallon of roofing paint to preserve the lumber. These made possible a greater attendance at games and also by being there, fans felt more inclined to contribute. These will be left in place for use of the high school team in the spring next year and for the town team of next season.

Those who contributed uniforms, to whom much credit is due for the appearance of the team were: Chatfield Garage, James Barkalow, B. F. Short, Addison National Bank, Morris Tyson, Homer Reynolds, Edgar Dann, George Dininny, Melvin G. Hubbs, Eugene Wade, Eagle Hotel, Kate's Restaurant and E. P. Leavenworth.

In addition to the above, cash contributions were received as follows: Two dollars from L. E. Handy Lynn Taylor, Harold Wilson, Walter Goff, Peter Doddato, L. W. Barr, John E. Chart, Harry Laffkas, Lewis Hill and Fred Frost and $1 from each of the following: E. P. Leavenworth, Guy Ricker, Sidney D. MacDowell and Quality Dry Cleaners.

The team made a good appearance, played good ball most of the season, had a fine bunch of fellows and much credit is due to the fellows who organized it at the beginning of the baseball year and gave the village representation. Organized play programs and adult play programs are becoming more prevalent and even in cities where crowded conditions exist, teams organize and play on vacant lots and on city streets. Here there is a good playground and a good ball diamond.

Mrs. Baldwin Suddenly Called By Death

The death of Mrs. Celestia Baldwin occurred suddenly at her home on Park Place, Saturday morning, September 30, 1939, at 10:30 o'clock. She had been slightly ill for a few days, but death came without warning. Her passing was a great shock to all her friends.

Mrs. Baldwin was born at Jobs Corners, Pa., December 7, 1856, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Smith. After her marriage to Mr. Baldwin the couple lived for several years upon a farm on the Rathbone road which is still known as the Baldwin farm. They returned to Addison to take up their residence in the Baldwin homestead where Mr. Baldwin died 13 years ago. Mrs. Baldwin was one of the oldest members of the Addison Presbyterian Church, which she joined in 1876. She was a member of the Women's Missionary Society of the church and a charter member of Onwentsia Chapter, D. A. R. Cheerful in disposition she made many friends who mourn her passing. Village Fathers Not to Force Sidewalk Building on Bakery

Trustees met Monday and refused to be drawn into issue between Pep-O Bakery and Mel Murray—Fear cost and village may lose out — Grievance day November 21—Jail approved by state.

Members of the Village Board finally decided not to force building a sidewalk in front of the Pepper lot from the Mel Murray house to the Pep-O Bakery. This action was taken at a meeting held Monday evening in the court rooms in the village hall. Mr. Murray appeared before the Board to ask for the walk, stating that the 30 days notice period had expired.

Mayor Sisto opened the discussion by stating that he did not think it advisable for the village to sue one taxpayer to satisfy another taxpayer. Trustee Allen pointed out that the village had done this in a previous case with the result that it cost the village $900 and nothing came of it.

Mr. Murray pointed out that "it makes a difference as to who you are whether the village will take your part or not". He said, "I cannot see why I, a taxpayer, should have to sue to get a sidewalk. You are just trying to pass the buck". Trustee Orr was and is opposed to forcing Pepper's Bakery to build a sidewalk and said, "My reason for opposing the measure is this. A man is in business here, employes many people and I cannot see why he should have to move to get along with the village, for the village should help business men and not try to hinder them in making a living. Pep-O Bakery hires local men. The walk is bad and should be fixed on Water Street but the board cannot compel a man to build a walk." Trustee Allen said, "'the board should not be the goat for a private scrap and should not be made to take the rap."

Mr. Murray said, "I have been five years trying to get you to make a definite statement and have made 25 trips here. If you had told me the answer five years ago I would have had the walk built by now."

Assistant Fire Chief Walter Aldrich appeared before the Board to request brooms for fighting grass fires. He will purchase six to be the trucks.

Bills Audited

Bills audited and ordered paid were: Mrs. Mary Hibbard for cleaning jail and court room, $4; Lawrence Thomas $1.50 for materials and labor; Addison Home Telephone Company, $10.50; electric lights, $294; Steuben Water Works, $433.5 for the past three months.

A communication was received from the Board of Supervisors asking villages, towns and cities in the county to compromise taxes on properties where the owed taxes seem excessive when the property is sold for taxes to a third party. In many cases the taxes and penalties often exceed the value of the property. Addison has no such properties up for tax sale and no action was taken on the communication.

Jail Improvements

Recommendations were received from the State Department of Corrections that new, water and vermin-proof mattresses, or new ood, vermin-proof bunks be placed in the village jail, that the mayor and village clerk be provided with keys and that drinking cups be available at all times and also that when a prisoner is in the jail that there be adequate supervision 24 hours daily owing to the bail not being fire proof. The jail inspection was made August 22, 1939 and it was approved as clean.

Grievance Days

Hereafter meetings of the Board will be at 7:30 during the winter months. Grievance day for taxes was set as the third Tuesday in November the 21, beginning at 1 p. m. Questions relative to whether property purchased and made tax exempt by pension, bonus or death benefit and the nsold and the money used for purchase of a second piece of property were raised by Trustee Orr. He wanted to know if the tax exemption held on the second piece of property. This will be discussed at the next meeting.

Mayor Sisto wanted to know what the county has done relative to fixing the sidewalk at the intersection of Main and Front Streets for he has had more complaints about this walk than from any village fult in several years. Clerk Miller stated no word had been received from the county relative to the communication sent them.

Those present at the meeting were Mayor Angelo Sisto, Trustees Hubert Orr, Russell Allen and Norman Phelps, Sr.

PROTECT THE INNOCENT

The word "horror" seems the only apt way to describe the reaction of most people to the brutal slaying of Evelyn Reed, pretty little 13-year-old Penn Yan girl who was struck down in the edge of Steuben County. And the high temperature of public indignation over the killing is brought to the boiling point by the common knowledge that this murder was needless. The man who committed the act was not alone responsible for the death of this child. For there should be arraigned beside him at the bar of justice the system which allows degenerates like the accused to freely roam among innocent human beings, any one of thousands of whom are potential victims of such beasts.

It is always presumed that an accused is innocent until he is proved guilty. But with a recorded confession from Wheelock in officials' hands there are few people who can honestly believe he is innocent of the crime for which he is to be tried. If the young man is not guilty of this crime, then some other man of similar mental make-up must have committed the deed which took the life from a happy child and plunged her parents into a grief from which they will never recover as long as they live. For the evidence gathered by the district attorney's office, the coroner and the biologist show the murder was a sex killing, and sex killings are nearly always the result of our system of wasted public sympathy and miserably inconsistent prison parole methods.

In the first place Wheelock is a degenerate who was convicted more than once of criminal assault upon women and girls. He was sent to an insane asylum for observation and psychologists reached the conclusion he was not insane, but that he had criminal tendencies. Then, in spite of this knowledge which must have been in their possession, members of the parole board gave this dangerous man his liberty after a short prison term. Their action was like turning a lunatic loose in a crowd with a machine gun. Upon their heads should rest at least part of the blame for the killing of little Evelyn Reed.

It is high time our state legislature made a study of the history of sex killings in the commonwealth over a period of ten or twenty years. It would be well for that study to include a compilation of figures on the cost of trials which have convicted these abnormal creatures, or turned them loose again to continue their depredations against society. This is the minor cost of the work of these degenerates, but it is impossible to get figures which will tell the heart-aches and sufferings their acts bring in the course of a year. Armed with the facts the law-makers should handle this situation without gloves and frame legislation which will make it impossible for these sex criminals to secure parole unless they are sterilized.

With all our boasted advancement in social work we have hidden behind bugaboos when it comes to dealing with a condition which is rapidly polluting the very life-stream of our American race. In every county degenerates are constantly adding to the part of our population which is almost sure to fill our prisons and lunatic institutions—Wheelock himself has two children. Can one imagine the sad state of a child fathered by this self-confessed sex-killer?

All the sympathy in the world poured out for the parent of this murdered child cannot assuage the grief the terrible death has brought them. Instead of vainly spending our time in sympathy we should turn our minds to the task of preventing the recurrence of such dastardly crimes. If, out of the death of little Evelyn Reed, could grow the cure of these needless deeds by twisted intellects, then the girl would not have died in vain.

Our great trouble has been that in most of the so-called social advances in this country we have allowed our judgment to be misled by maudlin sympathy for people are quite often undeserving of our tears. Prison reformers have harped for years on the good wrought by the parole system, but they keep strangely silent on the subject of abnormal men who are set free to prey upon innocent victims. In the last analysis it is the innocent members of society to whom we owe the largest measure of protection, even though the law-breaker occasionally is forced to endure a rather stern penalty from the law.

THE GAME IS ON

Anyone even mildly interested in sports could not help be thrilled a bit when the Cincinnati Reds finally won the game which clinched the National League pennant for them after a lapse of 20 years below the first place mark. Everyone admires a fighter and the country was glad to take its mind off war and other sordid events to watch the Reds' two fighting pitchers, Walters and Derringer giving their all day after day for their team.

The Reds may not be able to win against the Yanks, a team packed with all the players money can buy or develop. But at least it is a good diversion for thousands of fans to flock to the games and millions fans to tune in their radios and forget wars and intrigues in Europe while the World's Series is on. May the "Play Ball" take us out of ourselves and relieve the tension which is screwing up many nerves that are too taut already. The good old game is on, who is interested in war news, anyway?

CODDLING

We read in the public press how Wheelock, the night of his arrest, ordered a hearty meal which he ate with evident relish, and then spent the evening, unconcernedly, in reading.

Possibly reversion to the old fashioned prison fare of black bread and water and an evening with nothing else to think about except the predicament he has brought on, will not effect the reform of criminal. But at least public decency would be less outraged by the knowledge such a man was not being coddled, than by hearing of him "enjoying" himself. It was reported that sentiment grew hot around Penn Yan the day after the arrest, and some hot-heads were looking for a leader to mete out mob justice.

No law abiding person would condone mob violence, yet it is quite possible mob violence is often incited by the public belief that a killer will escape the just penalty of the law.

DESTROYER OF JOBS

Fire is a great and ruthless destroyer of jobs. As Safeguarding America Against Fire, observes, "Crowds watching fire roar through a huge Midwestern factory were thrilled by the spectacular play of the flames as they engulfed the building, and the stubborn battle of the firemen . . . The employes of the plant who came to the scene on the following day were not thrilled by the smouldering ruins. They now saw what had actually taken place. They realized their jobs had burned up;"

The loss of a job is a major tragedy to the individual involved. And it is a community tragedy as well. Everyone is directly or indirectly affected. When men are thrown out of work, their purchasing power stops or is vastly reduced. That means less business for the corner grocery, for doctor, lawyer and candlestick maker. It means that bills cannot be collected, and that rent goes unpaid. In many cases where men cannot find new jobs they must apply for relief, and become a burden to the taxpayers.

A burned factory no longer pays taxes, or does its part in support of community endeavors. The load must be distributed among others. There are cases on record where the destruction by fire of a community's only large industry has ended civic progress.

You can't insure against losses such as this. You con't make up for lost jobs, wealth, orders, taxes. What fire takes from us is gone forever—it is utter and complete economic destruction. Fire prevention is a cause in which everyone of us should enlist—and there's no better time for joining the fight than during Fire Prevention Week, which is to be nationally observed this month.

THE ENEMY OF HONEST LABOR

The radical excesses of a certain small group of labor leaders constitute a direct and growing menace to the welfare and progress of the legitimate labor movement.

The left-wing labor leaders apparently regard operating industry as the proper target for attack in spite of the fact that operating industry is the primary source of employment for the American workman, skilled and unskilled, organized and unorganized. They seem to think capital should be destroyed in spite of the fact that a very large capital investment is necessary to provide the average workman with a job at high wages. They support business-baiting legislation in spite of the fact that passing this kind of legislation is the surest way to shut down industries, and throw men out of work.

No thinking business man opposes unionism—he knows that honest unions provide the worker with necessary protection and help assure the general high standard of living among laboring men which is essential to the maintenance and expansion of our industrial system. No thinking business man favors sweatshop employment policies, or bad working conditions, or excessively long hours of work. Time and again for many years leading business men and the heads of the established unions have sat down together, discussed common problems, and by the process of arbitration arrived at solutions which have been beneficial and fair to all. There is no anti-labor feeling among the business leaders of this country—even as there is no anti-business feeling among "real" labor leaders. Both sides know that each depends on the other — that capital and labor will rise or fall together.

It is the racketeering radicals that cause the trouble. When they unfairly fight business, they fight employment, better wages, improved working conditions. They fight the welfare of the worker whose cause they pretend to espouse. The sooner American labor as a whole realizes this, the better off we shall be.

Destroying Sumac

T. M., writes: "Kindly tell me how and when to destroy sumac which has become a nuisance around my home."

Oren L. Justice of the botany department answers: "Several species of non-poisonous sumac, all of which have about the same type of root system, can all be destroyed by the same method.

"Two practical methods are: First, since Staghorn sumac has shallow roots, they are easily grubbed out. The roots often run great distances just under the surface of the soil; pull as much of these as possible.

"Second, if the shrubs are growing close to each other, slash them down and graze them closely with sheep, goats, or cattle as soon as the new shoots appear. To be most effective, cutting should have been done five or six weeks ago.

"Perhaps a combination of grubbing, cutting and grazing can be worked out to meet your conditions."

Raising Goats

J. A. S., inquires: "Do you have any information on the raising of goats? I am thinking of raising them for the milk they produce."

F. I. Elliott of the animal husbandry department replies: "Cornell recently published a new bulletin on the raising of goats. It's number is E-414. A copy has been sent to you".

Hamilton Calls On GOP To Rally Now

New York, Sept. 28—John Hamilton, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, has called on all Republicans over the country to "rally and close ranks" to "keep alive the American system of Representative government".

"As Republicans", he said, "our first duty is to be good Americans. We can become better Americans by becoming better Republicans. As the party of Lincoln, it is our sacred trust to see that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth".

Pointing out that "since September 3 the United States has been the only great nation where the processes of democratic government continue to function unimpaired", Hamilton asserted that "it places upon us a responsibility unique among the peoples of the world".

Speaking before a meeting of the New York County Republican Committee, Hamilton made it clear that he was not addressing the committee alone, but that he was speaking to Republicans everywhere.

"It is true", he declared, "that the outbreak of warfare in Europe has brought us to a crisis in the ordering of our own affairs. Momentous decisions must be made which may well affect for better, or for worse the whole future destiny of our nation. But there is no immediate threat to impel us to rush headlong to hasty and ill-considered conclusions. There is ample time for mature consideration and deliberate debate.

There is no obligation or compulsion to blindly follow the leadership of any one individual or group, no matter how disinterested or inspiring that leadership may be. There is no reason to surrender our American birthright of frank, free and open discussion to any leadership no matter how intelligent and well informed that leadership may be. And let no leadership attribute unworthy motives to those who differ honestly with it and have the courage to express those differences. Let the voice of the people be heard. And let the voice of the people prevail!

"Along with talk of adjourning politics is heard the suggestion of coalition government — the suggestion that Republicans be included in the cabinet of the present administration. The plea is made that we make a show of national unity; present to the world a united front.

"Those who advance this argument overlook two fundamental facts. In the first place, the kind of united front of which they speak becomes a necessity only after final decisions have been made and the national welfare demands that the entire nation stand back of them. In the second place, ours is not the type of government which lends itself to coalition.

"We have as yet made no final decisions in this crisis. We are in the process of making them. We are in the discussion stage where regimentation of thought and opinion has no place. We are at the point where it not only is the privilege but the duty of every responsible citizen to exercise his best judgment for the welfare and the protection of this country. Now, if ever, is the time for every American to speak out, boldly and unafraid. Ideas which cannot stand the test of scrutiny and debate are unworthy either of support or adoption.

"The proper functions of the minority party under our two-party system is both positive and negative. On the positive side, its function is to propose and fight for policies which to its leaders seem better designed to promote the public welfare than the policies and program of the party in power. From the negative standpoint, its function is one of constructive criticism to expose the errors and fallacies of the majority party's philosophy and to serve as a brake upon excesses which inevitably result from the unrestrained exercise of great power.

"I resent any attempt in the name of emergency to stampede the party into becoming a mere rubber stamp for Administration proposals, to divert it from its proper function in our system of representative government. Nothing would be more disastrous to this nation than an adjournment of politics which would permit a blackout of urgent domestic problems. As a party, we would be faithless to our trust if we permitted what is happening in Europe to divert us from the task that is ours of correcting the errors of the past six and one-half years and of redirecting our energies towards a useful and permanent recovery.

"The challenge presented to our party can be met only by political action. It is our solemn obligation to meet that challenge and not to dodge it by seeking refuge in an adjournment of politics at a time when our domestic problems are as critical as our foreign relations.

"And we must meet that challenge soon. The party national conventions are less than a half year off. In November of next year the people must choose a President of the United States. If there ever was a time when the politics of principles should not be adjourned it is now and in the months preceding that vitally important undertaking.

"The real need today is for more, and not less, political alertness. It would be fatal for the nation if we permitted our preoccupation with the affairs of Europe to blind us to the state of affairs at home. The danger is all the greater since the war itself already is serving to obscure and to distort the domestic picture.

"The war in Europe may enable the New Deal to escape in large measure the dire consequences of its mistaken farm policy, its wasteful spending folly, its hamstringing of business, its drying up of the sources of investment capital, its fomenting of labor strife and its bleeding white of the American people thru the pyramiding of taxation. So let us declare ourselves here and now to party unity and to unselfish service to the nation through political action based on sound principles and uninfluenced by worthy partisan considerations".

Liming Vegetable Soils
G. J. Raleigh

This is a good season of the year to test soils to determine whether lime is required for growing vegetables. Some vegetables will not grow well in a moderately acid soil, and hence need lime; some have higher lime requirements than others.

The first step is a soil test to determine how acid or alkaline a soil is. Next, consider the lime needs of the crop. The more important crops may be placed in three classes.

Class I is composed of vegetables that will not thrive in a strongly acid soil, hence have high lime requirements. Included in this group are asparagus, beets, celery, leeks, lettuce, onions, parsnips, salsify and spinach.

In class II are vegetables that are moderately sensitive to deficiency of lime. The group includes broccoli, cabbage, muskmelons, cauliflower, mustard, peppers and potatoes. They will grow in a soil that is somewhat acid.

Class III includes vegetables that are tolerant of a lime deficiency, hence will grow in more acid soils. The more important ones are beans, carrots, chard, Brussels sprouts, eggplant, endive, pumpkin, radishes, rhubarb, squash, sweet corn, tomatoes, turnips and watermelons.

If lime is needed, growers should make sure it is applied in the correct amounts and in the right manner.

CHAPTER CHATTER

The new amendment to the Federal-State milk marketing agreement has been voted favorably by the farmers of the New York Milk Shed and has been ratified by State of New York and by the Federal officials.

This new amendment sets the price of Class I milk used for fluid purpose at $2.82 per 100 pounds of 3.5% milk. The class II-a (fluid cream) will be set at $1.90 per 100 pounds of 3.5% milk. Other classes have also been increased in proportion.

In talking with many farmers we believe that some are under the impression that they will receive $2.82 per 100 pounds for all their milk, however, this is not so and the price received by each farmer will be determined by the use to which his milk is put, in other words he will receive a blended price.

Some people do not understand how this blended price is arrived at so we will take this opportunity to explain it so that all may have a better understanding of this important problem.

Three ways of measuring the dealer's spread on milk are illustrated below. Probably the most common idea of this "spread" among both farmers and city people is the one represented by method number one. The notations that are given in connection with the figures emphasize that this idea of the spread is entirely wrong.

The third method takes into account all the different uses of milk with the actual price that applies to milk for each purpose at any particular time. This method gives the most accurate idea of the real spread.

Ways of measuring dealers' spread on milk.

Based on approximate prices for Grade B. Milk sold to consumers in New York City, January 1937.

Method one: Retail price, Grade A milk New York City 13c per qt. Net price to farmers, 3.5% milk, 201-210 milk zone, 4c per quart. Apparent spread 9c per quart.

This method is incorrect and wholly useless. Dealer sells only part of milk at retail price.

Method number two: Retail price, grade B milk, New York City 13 cents. Price paid 3.8% milk for retail purposes .056 cents. Spread of retail milk 7.40 cents.

This method is not a good method because they only apply to part of the milk. However, they are useful to indicate changes in the dealers' spread from month to month or year to year.

Method number three: Average net selling price obtained by dealers for a certain amount of milk; in the following example it is worked on the basis of one queart. The same figures can be applied to any quantity of milk.

Retail milk—40% at 13 cents per qt. = 05.2 for 40% of a quart.

Wholesale bottled milk — 10% at 09.5 per quart = 09.5 for 10 % of a qt.

Wholesale fluid milk—10% at .03 per quart = 0.30 for 10% of a qt.

Cream—20% at .07 per qt. = 1.40 for 20% of a quart.

Butter—20% at 03.5 per qt.=0.70 for 20% of a quart.

Average for the milk for all uses —09.3 per qt.

Average purchase price:

Class 1—60% at 5.6c per qt. 3.36
Class 2—20% at 0.82c per qt 0.82
Class 4—20% at 2.6c per qt. 0.52

Average price paid by dealers 4.70
Actual spread on all milk 4.60

This is the most accurate way of measuring the spread. It is seldom used because the actual price and proportions are not made public by the milk dealers.

The retail price of milk is more steady than most other prices but it also varies from time to time, with changing conditions.

The distributors' spread is more inflexible than the retail price of milk. The result is that the shock of changes in retail price falls very heavily on the farmer. For instance, the retail price of milk in New York City dropped from 16 cents a quart in 1929 to an average of 11.1 cents a quart in 1933. This was a reduction of 30 per cent. Meanwhile the distributors' spread on retail milk was reduced from 8.5 a qt. to 7 cents a qt, or 18 per cent. Less than one-third of the reduction in the retail price was absorbed by the dealer, while more than two-thirds came out of the returns to farmers. The price paid farmers for Class I milk was reduced from 7.5 cents a quart to 4.1 cents or 45 per cent.

When prices rise, the distributors' spread again changes less than the retail price and farmers get some of the benefit. As prices rise the farmers share of the consumer's dollar will increase.

The dealers' spread represents a detailed account of the disposal of the milk and much is included. The most essential is that the dealers' spread represents both profit and cost. Nearly always the expense of handling and distributing milk takes 90% of the dealers' income. In the great majority of cases profits are between five and ten per cent of the dealers' spread on milk or from two to five cents for each dollar of sales. Salaries, wages and commissions paid employes are the greatest item of expense in operating a milk business. This makes up about one-half of the total expense. About one-eighth of the total consists of depreciation, taxes, insurance and maintenance of buildings and equipment. The balance, about two-fifths of the total, is made up by the cost of fuel, power, freight and handling, bottles, caps, washing powder and other supplies.

Warning Issued On Dog Quarantine

According to information from Bath rigid enforcement of the state dog quarantine appears likely in view of the violations occurring within the past three weeks with dog owners permitting animals to be out after sunset and before sunrise.

Damage to sheep by dogs has mounted recently with the result that Sheriff Joseph L. Bailey has warned dog owners that his staff would take steps to bring about obeyance of the law unless dogs were controlled under the state law.

Several dogs in this vicinity have been seen out at night and will be picked up by Chief Leavenworth.

The quarantine of dogs at night has resulted in a marked saving to the county in the payment of claims of damages by dogs. According to William Newcomb, Rathbone supervisor and chairman of the agriculture committee, payments of claims is $5,833.64 less so far this year than that of the first eight months in 1938. In an eight-month period to September 1, 1938, the county paid $18,351.08 for claims whereas for the period ending September 1, 1939, only $12,516.44 has been charged against the county.

Knights Blank Arkport, 20 to 0 In Football Opener Friday

Addison High went to town in its opening game last Friday at Arkport and defeated the home team something like 20 to 0. The team from Addison got away to a slow start and looked bad in the opening period with Arkport playing most of the time in Addison territory and tearing the Knights line to shreds. However, with backs to the wall, the winners managed to keep the losers from getting into scoring position, although the goal line was a matter of few yards away at times for Arkport.

In the third period things began to happen. The first touchdown came on a pass from Louie Dominick to Rodney George for 20 yards and the pass was into George's hands behind the goal line.

The setup for the second touchdown came in the third period when Dominick passed 40 yards to George again to the Arkport three yard line and from there Crawford took it around right end for the second score of the game. The extra point was made on a pass from Louie to Andy Dominick.

Surprise and thrills marked the third touchdown for the Knights for Crawford grabbed the ball with two minutes to play. He took it on a kickoff from Arkport on his own 20 yard line and as he said, "jumper over two boys and a dog" to run through the whole Arkport team for a touchdown. Bill Root kicked a field goal for the extra point. Avoca will be visited today, Thursday, and keen rivalry always marks these games.

Teacher Saved in Athenia Sinking Tells of Seeing Sub's Periscope

The following item is of interest to many in Addison and vicinity since the writer, Miss DeMun has relatives and has visited here many times in company with her father the late George DeMun. Mr. DeMun was a brother of Mrs. Lenah Stephens, Mrs. Leah Manley and Riley DeMun of Northrup Hill, all of whom are deceased—Ed's note.

The following eyewitness account of the Athenia's sinking was written for the United Press by Miss Irene De Mun of Topeka, Kans., after her arrival at Glasgow.

Glasgow—I am a teacher at State College. This was my first trip to Europe. With a group of friends I toured France and England.

I was seasick aboard the Athenia from the very first day. We were happy, however, to be on our way home on the beautiful liner.

My seasickness helped save my life as I was lying down in my cabin when the submarine released its torpedo.

When the torpedo hit the Athenia I heard the most terrible dull sound. The lights went out. Luckily, I had a flashlight which I had bought in London. It proved invaluable during those dreadful moments.

Sharing my cabin was a very young German Jewish girl, a refugee from Frankfurt. There were a number of German refugees on board. My companion became hysterical. I managed to quiet her enough to slip on my coat and shoes I then grabbed her by the arm and rushed on deck.

What little confusion I saw was made by a group of Polish refugees who did not speak English.

They were forming queues when we arrived and everything was being handled very efficiently.

I shall never forget the scenes when mothers and children became separated.

I was on deck before the second explosion occurred and saw the periscope of the submarine. A short while later a terrific amount of smoke and water arose from the submarine.

Our lifeboat was crammed. We had only three men in it so the women took turns at the oars. The sea was relatively calm and not too cold.

In the morning a destroyer picked us up. I cannot express sufficiently my appreciation for the British Navy. We Americans are always hearing about the greatness of the British Navy, but the courtesy shown toward the Athenia survivors surpassed all possible imagination.

The British Navy fed and comforted us. The sailors took off their coats and sweaters to give them to us.

It was a horrifying experience. I don't want to be taken for a heroine. Hundreds of other women aboard the Athenia acted similarly or did even more.

My one desire now is to get home and to college as soon as possible.

Addison Stock Insurance Rates Take Drop Under New Classification

Residents of Addison under fire department protection will be interested to know that new rates effective October 1, on frame dwellings and outbuildings within five hundred feet of a hydrant will be much to their advantage.

The former method of rating frame buildings was by roofs, shingle roofs being sub-standard and metal or composition roofs standard. The former three year rate for protected standard roof frame dwellings was $.55 per hundred and for contents $.65 per hundred. The former rate for sub-standard roofs was $.05 per hundred higher, being $.60 for building and $.70 for contents.

The former three year rate for protected frame barns and garages with standard roof was $.80 per hundred and contents $.90 per hundred. The sub-standard roof rate for the same building was formerly $.85 and the contents rate $.95.

These rates are all minimum, and charges for non-permitted chimneys, exposurer by buildings other than dwellings, etc., were added when necessary.

The new rates ffective October 1 are on an altogether different basis. The roof covering differential has been discontinued. The rates for dwellings, barns and garages are now the same. The 80 per cent or co-insurance method of rating formerly used only with specifically rated buildings can now be applied to dwellings and outbuildings, to the advantage of the assured. It should be explained that the lower co-insurances rates are based on the undertaking of the insured to carry insurance in an amount up to 80 per cent of the value of the property covered, and that failure on his part t omaintain that ratio simply places him in the position of assuming his own liability for the difference between the amount of insurance actually carried and the requirements of his co-insurance clause.

The new three year rates for fram dwellings, regardless of roof or chimney, are $.50 flat or an alternative of $.45 co-insurance. The same rates for contents are $.60 flat or an alternative of $.55 co-insurance. (All rates formerly used were "flat rates"). Chimney charges and exposure charges for protected dwellings are no longer necessary.

Although these rates are effective October 1, in stock companies, policies written since July 1 can be endorsed or cancelled and rewritten to give the assured credit for the reduced rate, at the request of the assured.

Milt Crane Organizing Veteran Football Team— To Play AHS Tuesday

Milton Crane has been elected unofficial captain and field manager for a town football team which will tackle the Addison High School team in a contest to be played next Tuesday night on the high school athletic diamond. It is hoped to attract a large attendance to this game to raise funds for the athletic association to help defray expenses for the fellows who have been injured playing during this season, when five casualities have been recorded, for the first time since Addison has been playing football.

Coach Miller's charges are in good condition in preparation for this contest. It is expected that Mr. Miller will be one of the bulwarks of the attack of the Nine Old Men when they oppose the high school team. Captain Crane is still recruiting talent for his squad and any of the former high school stars, ex-collegians or other athletically minded fellows are asked to communicate with him. Among proposed talent for the team such Finnerty, Bernard Wilson are benames as Ken Armstrong, Frank ing mentioned.

Call By The Chairman of Local Townsend Movement

Everyone in favor of the Townsend plan for national recovery whether belonging to the club or not, and all who believe in it, within 25 miles, take notice, we are unifying the movement now for the coming elections.

All who believe that the control of the nation's money should be taken away from Wall Street and put back into the hands of the people, send your name and address to me, the chairman of the Addison group. There are no dues nor money needed for this. We want the Townsend people of Addison unified, to vote together for the Townsend cause in the coming election. We already hold the political balance of power in the United States—there are now over twenty million voters of us. The Townsend plan is not a mere pension scheme; but a national recovery plan to force the nation's money out of locked-up vaults of Wall Street and put it into circulation where it belongs. The lack of this is the sole cause of this twelve-year depression—the worst ever known! And shows what the big money tyrants will do to you when they get a chance.

A physician went into a home in Addison, found the people eating dinner — all they had to eat was bread and butter and water! They were like thousands of others, too sensitive and humiliated to make their privation known. This is only a single instance of what is occurring all over the nation!

Many of us, including this writer, do not intend to partake of the pension feature, even after the law passes, but we join and help this cause to smash this and all other depressions forever, which even its worst enemies, the idle rich, admit it will do. But we can't fight alone, nor with merely the misery-stricken element of the population. We want you all, who will, to help.

We have forty members in our club but we should have ten times that number right here in Addison.

Send your names to me. We will then call a meeting for all.

Restore Your Rights As Americans!

The right to live, which big money denies you, in order for these big money grabbers and their kind to have brought this nation to poverty in the midst of plenty! So that they can get fat and grow rich.

Throw off this yoke of tyranny—you of the common herd (like myself)! We have the power! Be sure to use it in this and, every other election.

No dues. Send your name and a stamp so we can communicate with you.

Emery H. Chase, Local Chairman,
Addison, N. Y.

Potato Showmen Pick Entries Winner Event

Scores of expert potato showmen thruout Steuben County who annually exhibit at the Steuben County Potato Show are selecting samples for the 1940 contest in the field rather than to handle over the bin in the winter.

Every blue ribbon entry of recent shows has been selected in the field, the farm bureau reports, as a result of a survey of successful exhibitors.

Many state that they open up the hills with a potato hook to prevent bruising, then each potato of show quality is wrapped in paper and the lot put away in cool storage where it can be easily reached in mid winter.

The popularity of the winter potato show is indicated by the rapid increase of entries from eighty in 1936 to 169 in the last show. A goal of 300 has been established for the 13th annual show to be held in February of 1940.

Entry in the potato show is open to all growers of Steuben county; there are classes for all the usual varieties and substantial awards and ribbons are offered.

Hornell — This city will vote on daylight saving time in November. Owing to the railroad being a big industry here, the city will probably vote standard time, which is used by the Erie Railroad.

LETTER TO VOTERS

You vote for county and town candidates in the approaching election, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, means just this—your endorsement of extravagance in county governmental costs under the present Republican regime, or a sharp "turn to the right" for economy and efficiency under a Democratic administration. Too long has the county blindly supported Republican officials with the result that the county is "deeper in the red" than ever before in its history. You who pay the taxes should and probably will realize this, to your sorrow. Democratic candidates have been named for the offices to be filled in this election, each of whom is especially fitted by experience for the duties of the office to which he aspires. Every Democratic candidate is a man of [illegible] integrity, who are alarmed at this mounting taxation in the county, and feel it a duty for electors to vote in their own protection. A new Board of Supervisors is to be elected and only by placing a working Democratic bloc on such Board, can present unbridled extravagance be curbed and restrained. County candidates are for sheriff, Everett C. Buckley, former able deputy sheriff and for more than 10 years a member of the Bath National Bank Staff. Norman Annis, upstanding business man of Canisteo is candidate for county treasurer; Frank King, a rising attorney of Corning, seeks the assembly post in the First District to fill the vacancy caused by death of Guy Cheney; Virgil Gledhill, a member of the staff of the well known legal firm of Annabel & Wightman, Bath, aspires to election as district attorney. Cecil Hubbard and A. F. Lucas, representative citizens are candidates for coroners. Look over this ticket, inquire concerning the candidates; then consider your vote—whether for continuance of present "boss ridden" Republican machine politics, or a change for economy and bettered service.

The Value of Moral and Religious Education in the World of Tomorrow

With the dawn of tomorrow, there will be a need for young men and young women to serve as the defenders of their civilization. It is important therefore that their education, both religious and moral, be of the purest and highest standard so that they may be molded into the citizens of tomorrow.

We have no compassion! Only Today has that. We have no encouragement for you! Only Tomorrow has that.

We stand at the front door of the past welcoming the single file of days, that pass through, watching Tomorrows become Todays, and then enter among us.

Herein I will summarize the benefits and values of moral and religious education in the world of tomorrow.

1. It trains young people to become good parents. The home is the birthplace of citizenship. Here is a miniature community with its leader and citizens. Good parents devote their time to teach their children honesty, loyalty and devotion to God. This sub-training is of dire importance to the nation because it is here that a firm moral foundation is extremely necessary.

2. It preserves the Sanctity of the Home and the Bulwark of Society. Within those portals are concealed much arduous labor to construct a community to produce men and women who may mingle with clean minds and ways toward fellow-men.

3. It is basically necessary for the administration of justice. No laws are enforceable without it. Because some totalitarian governments have put government over Deity this lack of discretion in administering justice has been noticed.

4. It gives a firm foundation to true education which is the basis of better living conditions both mental and physical. Education of today and yesteryear will influence the world of tomorrow in art, science, religion and literature.

5. It preserves and fosters civilization. All past civilizations rotted because they became corrupt and immoral within. For example take Rome, Greece, Egypt and Babylonia.

In order to preserve the world of tomorrow we must prevent immoral conditions from taking root in the world of today.

6. It fosters respect for others by teaching good habits, manners and customs.

7. It teaches and trains young people to become good citizens and is basically patriotic teaching respect to God, flag and country.

8. It will reduce the crime wave of billions of dollars a year to over half and reduce prisons, courts and jail expenses.

9. It will humanize business, making it moral, elevate human personality, put feeling into business first and profit last. This will end labor disputes and give public faith in Big Business. With teaching of morality and religion to big industrial corporations, they will become greater in spiritual ideals and friendly to the public.

If all these faculties I have mentioned are heeded, they will greatly aid the man or woman of tomorrow.

If we people of today, founders of the world of tomorrow can heed the cry of moral and religious education, we can rest assured that we blazed a trail well worth traveling for those who will follow.

Avon to Have New Sound System

Negotiations have been completed for a new Simplex 4-Star Sound System between Mrs. Florence Chisom, manager of the Avon Theatre and the National Theatre Supply Company.

The new equipment represents a definite improvement over present sound quipment in use. It is entirely new and includes many technical developments which have recently been perfected through laboratory tests and under practical operating conditions. It assures greater realism in sound reproduction, better balance of high and low tone range, and the distribution of sound throughout the theatre is perfectly uniform irrespective of where you sit. These featurs are all of immeasurable value to the theatre patron and to his or her full and complete enjoyment of motion pictures.

"When this new equipment is installed", Mrs. Chisom stated, "our patrons will be quick to recognize the wonderful improvement. There will be a very definite feeling of greater realism and the positive illusion of 'being present'.

New methods and standards in recording constantly being adopted by the producers in Hollywood are beyond the performance capabilities of older types of sound systems", Mrs. Chisom stated. "For that reason, if we are to put a sound motion picture on the screen just as Hollywood created it, we must have available a sound system equal to the exacting requirements these new standards demand.

"Following a thorough study of contemporary equipment, we unhesitantly chose the new Simplex 4-Star Sound System because it is outstanding in technical excellence and, secondly, because it is manufactured by a firm long associated in building a product for the theater and conversant with our exacting requirements.

Legion Auxiliary Installs Officers Tuesday Night
